HIV post exposure prophylaxis (PEP) is a course of HIV medication that aims to prevent HIV infection following a recent exposure to HIV, for example following a sexual contact or a needle-stick injury. A full course of PEP is for 28 days (4 weeks).

PEP must be taken within 72 hours (3 days) after the possible exposure to HIV, and sooner if possible.

PEP is only available following an assessment by a doctor or a nurse. Not everyone who presents for PEP will need it.

PEP is currently available through a number of STI clinics and Emergency Departments. Attendance at Emergency Departments should be reserved for situations where there is an injury requiring urgent medical attention or where it is not possible to get PEP from a local STI or ID clinic within 72 hours.

Following a potential exposure to HIV at work (for example a needle stick injury), the Occupational Health department at your workplace will advise you on what to do. If you do not have an Occupational Health department at your workplace, the table below provides information on where and how PEP can be accessed.

PEP is free in Ireland.

In Ireland, individuals who attend an Emergency Department, without a referral letter, will be charged for that attendance. This charge is mandated by the Health (Out-Patient Charges) Regulations 2013<sup>1</sup>. For EU residents this cost is currently €100. The cost of attendance at an Emergency Department for non-EU residents is more.

Medical card holders and some other groups are exempt from this charge. Attendance for PEP assessment is not exempt from this charge.

The table below has a list of clinics and emergency departments with information on PEP availability.

The table is presented by county. Under the PEP availability column the following statements appear: PEP starter pack available; Full PEP service available during clinic hours; Receive referrals for PEP continuation and follow up.

Here is an explanation for each of those statements:

- “PEP starter pack available” means a person can present for assessment and if deemed appropriate, will be given a short course of PEP. This is not the full course. If a person is given a PEP starter pack (usually in an emergency department), they will need to be seen at another clinic for further assessment and continuation of treatment if recommended.
- “Full PEP service available during clinic hours” means a person can present for PEP assessment and receive the full course of treatment, or they can attend for continuation of PEP and follow up after a starter pack.
- “Receive referrals for PEP continuation and follow up” means a person can be seen, usually by appointment, for continuation of PEP treatment and follow up, after they have been on a starter pack.
